A FRAUD EXPOSED.

THE EXPLOITS OF ARTHUR MERETON, ALIAS THE REV. THEODORE KEATING.

Henry Ward Beecher Taken in by an Alleged Ex-Cathelic Priest - Keating's Sermons and Lectures-Church Bill Victimized-The Imposter's Exposure in Dublin.

New York, October 23.—Arthur Mereton, alias the Rev. Theodore Keating, the latest of whose impostures has just been exposed in Dublin, had a short but eventful career in America. Most of the persons who knew him in this city seemed to have only a hazy recollection of him yesterday. In this country he styled himself the Rev. T. O. R. Keating, D. D. He arrived in New York in 1870 with a rather good-looking woman whom he called his wife. He was short, somewhat stout, had ruddy complexion, and was dressed like an English clergyman. He had a strong cockney accent and was fond of teiling how he had escaped from the Church of Rome. His smooth address and his dramatically told tales of persecution at Rome after he had become "converted" found him sympathetic hearers. He quickly learned the whereabouts of the Protestant denominational newspaper offices, and made the rounds with contributions for publication. The Protestant Episcopal newspaper, the Churchman, was visited, but Editor Mallory rejected his articles. The Church and State, denominational newspaper, also refused to print his contributions. Beecher, however, was the first to set him on his legs. Beecher invited the adventurous man to preach in Plymouth pulpit, and he accepted. The Christian Union printed three column articles by him, and he was also invited to deliver the lectures in Plymouth Church. Beecher's enthusiasm was expressed in the Christian Union, of which he was then editor, on April 9, 1870, as follows, under the head: "Something Worth Hearing:"

"On Thursday evening of last week a lecture was delivered in the lecture room of Plymouth Church, Brooklyn, before the Plymouth Young People's Association by the Rev. T. O. R. Keating. The subject was 'Ten Years in Rome,' and for more than an hour the audience was held in intense interest by the lecturer's clear, intelligent exposition of Romanism, in whose theological schools he has had a thorough training, and by his graphic, picturesque sketches of scenes in Rome, where he spent many years. Dr. Keating is by this time known to the readers of the Christian Union by his writings. His 'Flight from Rome,' which we print this week, is exceedingly interesting. But the added charm of a pleasant voice, an earnest and even dramatic manner, and the evidence of complete familiarity with every part of the subject in his easy but comprehensive handling of it made his lecture one to be heard. We believe that Young Men's Christian Associations and literary societies in general could do no better than to secure Dr. Keating's services in the delivery of this lecture during the spring and early summer. His terms are moderate. He may be addressed at this office."

at this office."

SLICK WORK.

By means, it is said, of forged letters of introduction. Keating obtained from Bishap Horatio Potter license to preach in the decorate order, and was assigned to Briar pastorate. Briar Cliff is a small collection of houses about half way between Sing Sing and Scarborough, and more than a mile cust of the Hudson River road. The dwellers are well-to-do New York business men. Keating won golden opinions immediately by his well-written and cratorically delivered sermons. The little parish did sermons. The fittle parish of not get well acquainted with him however, before his career ended in disgrae and flight. Keating is vividly remembered by a doctor of divinity who was pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Tenafiy, N. J., who Keating was in this country and who now is a the head of an institution in this city. He sai yesterday: "One of the assistant editors of the Christian Union who lived near Tenafix seemed to place implicit confidence in Keating So great was his confidence in Keating in the Mr. Beecher told him he had better lool out or he would 'slop over.' The assistant editor, however, took him to New Jersey furnished him with money and got places for him to lecture. Keating became acquainted with Edward S. Saxton, now of California, then of Tenafy, and through Mr. Saxton he was invited to deliver; lecture on a week-day evening at the Presby terian Church. His address was filled with abuse of the Roman Catholic priesthood, and he told a great many stories which should not have been told in public. A good many of mere disgusted with the performance. Hig gave instances of immorality without giving names, and his stories did not amount to anything because they were not substantiated. A collection was taken up and Keating of about 500. Some gentlemen put in $50 hills. Pretty soon after this Mr. Saxton began to mistrust Keating, because Keating asked him for money. It leaked out by comparing notes around that Keating was striking everybody for money. His was suniform tale. He had plenty of money in the old country, but for two or three months he was going to be in a tight fix. All he wanted was enough money to tide him over. Keating dined with me about this time. He said he had lived there and thought it was not generally known. A story he told about the Cardinal, however, made me mistrust him. He said that astony he told about the Cardinal, however, made me mistrust him. He said that astony he told about the Cardinal, however, made me mistrust him. Fasher Hecker of the Paulist Fathers, a fity-ninth street and Ninth avenue, has written to Rome to learn whether anything wand was nown of Keating. On receiving a reply heation saying that no such perso a Keating was on the register of priest Rome. Beecher's paper published this, or lied "An Indorsement Withdrawn," only 16th: "The editors of the Christian inon having, within a recent period, published articles from the pen of T. O. R. Keal g, reputed to have been a priest, and have gin good faith commended his lectures the public, now desire to withdraw such comendation and, as far as it can be done, to curralize any influence which he may have reved from his writings in this paper. once more in political circles. The Ministers are returning and appointments for Cabinet councils are being made. There is to be a great Conservative meeting at Bradford next week. The National Liberal Federation holds a conference at Leeds immediately afterwards.

At the latter Morley will define the attitude of the Home Rule Liberals towards the Government and the Unionists. The Lord Mayor's banquet on the 9th of November will produce other important Conservative speeches. From then till the end of January political discussion will continue to extend. At present it i confined to the possibility of a Liberal reunion. On all sides, except, perhaps, among Chamberlain's supporters, who regard him as much sorrow is expressed at the present state of things, which prevents hopelof a speedy reconciliation. Nobody, however, least of all Gladstone, has yet shown how this may be heasight about without the sacrifice of convictions. On one side, Gladstone certainly has made no signs of receding from his extreme home rule position.

The question of the moment is the conflict

The question of the moment is the conflict between the Socialists and the authorities concerning the determination of the former to summon a procession of the unemployed to follow in the wake of the Lord Mayor's yearly pageant on November 9. The Socialists claim that all the Radical clubs in London are in perfect sympathy with them, but that more than 100,000 people will assemble at their summons. As the streets on Lord Mayor's day are impassable from the dense crowds, among which it is always difficult to keep the roughs in order, the addition to this of a second procession will be quite certain to result in serious disorder. The Socialist leaders assure me that they will certainly perist despite the protest of the authorities, unless the latter absolutely prohibit procession and threaten to call out military. Then they consider they would not be justified in forcing a conflict between the troops and the unarmed men. They add that they expect that the authorities will pledge themselves to establish some kind of relief works during the winter, in which case, the procession will be abandoned. This is extremely unlikely. The motto of the Tory Government is, indeed, to give peace in our time, but in all probability it will leave it to the Chief of the London Police to issue the prohibition, and it is equally probable that there will be disorder or some sort.

Justin MCCATHY, PARNEllite, has been awarded the seat in the House of Commons which he sontested for in the recent election against Charles Edward Lewis, Conservative. Mr. Lewis has sat for Londonderry ever since 1872. In the recent election the poil as counted gave Mr. Lewis 1,781 votes and Mr. McCarthy 1,778, and the seat was awarded to the former, who, up to date, has occupied it, although Mr. McCarthy at once entered a protest and has ever since been pushing his claim to the seat, basing his case largely upon allegations of illegal electioneering methods upon the part of his opponent. To-day Mr. Lewis' counsel abandoned his client's claim and the seat was declared to be Mr. McCarthy's. The case has been warmly contested from the start, and the announcement of the result has caused much excitement in the city. Mr. McCarthy has also the seat for Longford County, which he obtained without opposition.

INTERESTING TO SALVATIONISTS.
TORONTO, October 23.—A decision was given in an interesting case here yesterday by Chief. Justice Wilson in the Court of Appeals, which will silence all disputes about the legality of the Salvation Army to beat drums in the streets and to relieve that body of much persecution in the courts. George Martin, a Salvation Army soldier, was sent to jail for ten days by a judge in Lakefield, Ont., for disturbing the inhabitants by beating drums on the streets on Sunday contrary to a municipality by law. The Chief Justice, in quashing the conviction by the Lakefield Judge, quoted Edmund Burke, showing that while ringing a fire bell at midnight disturbed the people, it was to save them from possible destruction by being burned to death. It was not shown in the evidence against Martin that he was not beating the drum for the spiritual good of the inhabitants. The conviction of Martin was quashed.

SENATOR HARRIS OF TENNESSEE IN HOT WATER OVER AN APPOINTMENT.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH.

Harris of Tennessee at present is in a trying position. It is all on account of the Knoxville Pension Agency. The illustrious "Bob" Tay-Pension Agency. The illustrious "Bob" Taylor, who is now making a joint canvass with his brother "Aif" for Governor, resigned the pension agency at Knoxville when he accepted the Democratic nomination for Governor. This left a place to be filled. Senator Harris at once recommended a man named Wagner, though there were many others who wanted the position. Wagner was appointed and it at once was discovered to Harris' horror that Wagner had been a Republican member of the State Legislature some years ago. While there Wagner had voted to distranchise ail Tennesseans who had been in the Confederate army or sympathized with the rebellion, ne simply having been in the "Union army." Among other things which he voted for was the bill to offer a reward of $5,000 for the capture of Isham G. Harris, the present Senator who secured his appointment. At the time the bill was passed Harris was a fugitive rebel. Therefore, it is no wonder Senator Harris is worried for fear the commission will be issued and Wagner become the Pension Agent.

The report of this talk has created a great stir among the Washington ladies who have been agitated at various times by vague reports that the White House would probably be closed this winter for social festivities. The following is the report of the talk above mentioned: A few days ago while enjoying the beautiful view from the upper porch of the farm house, Col. Wilson remarked to the President that he was very sens ble in building the porch so wide for it gave to the old house the appearance of larger proportions than it would otherwise have. "That is the way an engineer officer looks at it," said Mr. Cleveland. "The ladies take a different view of its utility." "Ah, and what do they say?" asked Col. Wilson. "I thought I overheard them say the other day that it would be a splendid place to push around a baby carriage," and Mr. Cleveland looked at Col. Wilson as though he thought they were right.

A Cracow dispatch describes the Czar's last journey as having been undertaken with even more precautions for his safety than usual. The day before he arrived at Warsaw a Nihilist, who had been sentenced to death some days previously, was hanged in all haste. Soldiers stood along the entire line where the imperial trains were to pass. As the trains approached the soldiers turned about so as to be ready to fire upon any one who might try to get near the line. There were three trains—one for the imperial family, one for the baggage and a third for railway workmen, who could repair any damage happening to the lines. On the journey the Emperor changed from one to the other train several times. At the stations the windows and blinds were closed.

Geo. P. Strong, the Prohibition candidate for Senator in the Thirtieth Senatorial District, removed to St.

Louis in July, 1852, and has been actively engaged in the practice of the law in this city, from that date. He removed from New York to kentucky in the spring of 1835, before he was of age, and remained there, as a teacher, until the fail of 1836, when he removed to Mississispin 1840. He remained there practicing his profession until his removal to St. Louis in 1852. He opened an office in this city on the 1st of January, 1833, and rapidly acquired an important and lucrasive practice, and took rank among the leading lawyers of the city. He has been engaged in some of the most important legal controversies. Drincip tions nominated by the Democratic party, when he thought them "better qualified than those proposed by his own party. For a time during the war, he was upon the staff of Gen. A. G. Edwards, then in command of the District of Missouri, having been commissioned as Major by Gov. Gamble. He has never been an active politician nor a seeker of civil office. Without any action of his own he has been twice nominated for civil office previous to his present candidacy. In 1820 or 1828 he was nominated on the same ticket with the late Samuel T. Glover and Judge Woerner for the Senate of Missouri, the same office for which he is now a candidate. It was believed that this ticket received a majority of the votes cast, but the opposing candidates were declared elected. Measrs. Glover and Strong declined to contest the question, neither of them having any great desire for the position. Judge Woerner, however, did contest the matter and was declared lexally elected, took his seat and served as Senator. In 1894 Mr. Strong was elected a member of the Constitution of the State.

Upon the motion to suspend the rules and take up the ordinance, Mr. Drake and other friends of emandpation strenuously opposed the motion, on the ground that the act should be embodied in the "Bill of Rights," and not be the subject of a separate ordinance. An earnest controversy arose on that question lasting nearly the entire day, Mr. Drake leading the opposition, Mr. Strong the advocates of immediate action. The ordinance was put upon its passage and adopted by only four dissenting votes, Mr. Drake and nearly all who opposed acting by ordinance, voting with the majority. By this prompt action of Mr. Strong and his associates. Missouri became a free state January II, 1885, nearly three months before the bill of rights was adopted. The journal of that convention shows that Mr. Strong was in his place in that body adparticipated in its proceedings on nearly every day of its sessions which continued over three months. It comes in the form of a letter to the Sun: 'Will you kindly give your views on the prohibition question, and why you do not favor the movement?' There are two reasons why we do not favor prohibition. In the first place we do not approve of one man saying to another that he shall not drink, and in the second place the prohibition movement, regarded as a political method of enforcing certain moral restraints, is a fraud. Whether prohibition in itself is a humbug or not, it is the cause of humbug in others, and we are againsy it. The Magnetic Midget-How He Is Worshipe and Gives No Sign-Holds a Levee in the Rotunda-Looking at a Shop Site-Says It Isn't Likely Kansas City Will Get the Shops and Offices of the Gould System.

Jay, George and Edith Gould, who have een on a tour through the West and South, rrived at the Southern last evening. They been received by large crowds. There is some thing magnetic about Jay Gould. The sen-tence is old, the idea is old, the magnetism ay be old too, but it is effective. It is not mysterious quality; it is not the magnetism of Lulu Hurst, the Georgia wonder, nor the attractiveness of a brilliant conersationalist even; it is the mag-etism of money and success. This norning he stood in the rotunda of the notel and talked for a quarter of an hour with several dozen men who one by one approached im and solicited the favor of a few mtnutes onversation. All the time a crowd of slik conversation. All the time a crowd of slik hatted, black-coated men stood and gazed at the midget. The world seemed to center in the 5-feet high bit of flesh over there by the pillar. It seemed as though if he waved his hand, drawing the awful circle of Rome or some such thing the whole gang would go down on its knees. When one of them approached to speak to him it was with an appearance of inferiority. Hat off, back limber, face smiling. And Jay takes all this adoration, expressed and implied, with perfect calm.ess. Watching him for an hour one will not see his expression change. It is the same calm, placid, yet thoughtful look. Whether he thinks or not his face is not moved, his eyebrows knit restlessly, and his jaw hangs toosely. He constantly appears to be employing the gray matter, and yet THE SCHOOLED FACE betrays no hint of the way the thoughts are going. "How do you manage to think and not betray your thoughts?" a diplomate was asked. "I couldn't do it," he said. "When I fear going. "How do you manage to think and not betray your thoughts?" a diplomate was asked.

"I couldn't do it," he said. "When I fear to betray myself I don't think at all."

That may be Gould's rule. But the owl look on his face would fool the devil. Little, weazened, dried up, essence of brain. Where does he put all his power, all his cunning? True a 7th hat can enclose a deal of head room, but those pipe-stem legs need some other pewer than rests in them to keep a going. He wore this morning a stiff round-crown hat, the most fashionable modification of the primitive Derby. The rim curied jauntily and quickly at the side. His Prince Albert coat of black diagonal was quite new, and brushed with minute regard for specks of dust. Pants of dark grey cloth heavy enough for winter wear set well about square-toed soft leather shoes, in the polishing of which some careful servant had spent an earnest hour. Gould's beard, once so shining black, is getting now streaks of gray, and his hair is quite sprinkled.

"Mr. Gould," a reporter accosted him, "it was said after you left Kansas City that you intended to move the Missouri Pacific headquarters from St. Louis to that city."

"Yes." One of those quiet, dull thud yes-es, that send shivers down the back of a timid man, or make an old bluffer clinch his teeth.

"Is it true; do you intend to do so?"

"Is it likely?"

"Will Kansas City become the headquarters of the Gould system?"

one a chance to talk to him. When he doesn't feel like it he is a sly talker that beguiles Jay into a committal conversation.

A. L. Hopkins and Capt. Shackelford are with him. The party occupy seven rooms in the hotel. Mr. Gould occupies No. 44, Capt. Shackelford is in 42, Mr. George and Mrs. Edith have bedroom 56 and an adjoining parior 88, Mr. Hopkins has also a bed-room and parior Nos. 157 and 138. A man servant, the only domestic with the party, occupies 79. The Gould party are on the party of noor, only Mr. Hopkins being on the second floor.

GENERAL MANAGER KERRIGAN of the Missouri Pacific called this morning shortly before 9 o'clock. In spite of the fatigues incident to the long rides on the various rough railroads of the West, Mr. Gould was at breakfast this morning in the dining-room before 8 o'clock. George Gould and his wife breakfasted later in the ladles' ordinary. After the meal Gould held his levee in the rotunda, and presently dismissing a probably tiresome adorer, he gathered Messrs. Kerrigan and Shackelford out of the crowd, himself led the way to a carriage and the party was driven below the Iron Mountain yards to look at some ground that has been spoken of as an eligible site for shops that will be needed in that vicinity. The party spent the morning on this excursion.

George Gould only appeared downstairs for a few minutes this morning. He looked quite supercilious, but very nice. His wife wore a morning robe at breakfast, that while not theatrically elaborate was pretty enough to attract the attention of all the ladies about at that time. The pencil of one not trained in the technicalism of the modiste and lacking the adjective ability of a society reporter would fail to do justice to such an exquisite combination of dry goods. Mr. Governing the combination of of the goods. ability of a society reporter would fail to do justice to such an exquisite combination of dry goods. Mrs. Gould is as pretty as a picture, and even before it was noised about that she was nee Edith Kingdon and now the daughter-in-law of the railroad manipulator, that she was nee Edith annuous and not adaughter-in-law of the railroad manipulator, all the waiters were at her feet, mentalivif not physically. She remained in her room the remainder of the morning, and a carriage was ordered for the afternoon. To night the party will see Margaret Mather in Julia. a box having been secured by the servant. The stay here will probably be for several days as it is understood Mr. Gould feels the need of rest.

Branding a Child With a Hot Poker for Dis-By Telegraph to the Post-Disparce

NEW YORK, October 23 .- A policeman be longing to the sanitary squad recently went on a tour of inspection through the tenement houses in East Thirty-sixth street. In the rear of No. 410 he found a two-story building inhabited by colored people. With one exception the tenants seemed to be enjoying good health. The exception was Nettle Gard. iner, a 7-year-old child, who lived on the ground floor with her mother and a neighbor ground floor with her mother and a neighbor, an aunt, the neighbors said. Nettle was small for her age. One of the tenants told the officer in confidence that the little one was inhumanly treated, and enly a few days before had her little body burned with a red-hot poker. The officer was horrified and questioned the child, but she denied having been branded, and her mother interfered before the policemen could elicit any information.

He notified the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, however, and Superintendent Jenkins detailed Agent Stocking to investigate the matter. Mr. Stocking paid two or three visits to the house, but each time the little one could not be seen. From the neighbors, however, the agent gleaned a terrible story, of the way Nettle had been treated at various times. Several of the tenants told him they had heard the child screaming on Friday night when her unnatural aunt had applied a red-hot poker to her body. The scent of burning flesh pervaded the house from garret to ceilar they said. A tenant named Mrs. Matthews told the agent that she had slipped into the Gardiner apartments the morning after and found Nettle in bed, naked, suffering the most agonizing torture from the branding she had received. The burns were raw and no attempt had been made to dress them or to alleviate the pain of the child.

On Thursday afternoon Agent Stocking saw Mrs. Gardiner and Mrs. Fisher go out together, and he at once entered their miserably furnished rooms. Nettle was crouching in a corner moaning. She ceased when Stocking entered. He asked her if SHE HAD BEEN BURNED.

She answered no, but committed herself by saying: "Please go away before mamma comes home and Aunt Beulah, or else they'll burn me again."

The agent, with a great tenderness in his heart for the ill-travel and former in the contractions.

He asked Mrs. Fisher if she had burned the child, and she denied doing so. Mrs. Gardiner declared that Nettle had never been ill-treated, and that there were no scars on her body. She had washed her child the night before and found no marks of ill-treatment. Then the agent told them that he had seen the little one's body and seen the scars, whereupon Beulah Fisher coolly admitted that

Then, as coolly as an icide she told how she had burned the child until Mestic had fallen unconscious and the poker had become cold. The poker was about helf an inth wide and the scars on the child's body from an inch to two inches long. The agent arrested the woman and took her to the stationhouse, where she passed the night in a cell. She was taken to the Jefferson Market Police Court yesterday morning and arraigned before Justice Ford. Her husband and Mrs. Gardiner and her husband ranged themselves beside her and cast threatening looks on the child who confronted her, but qualied beneath the dark scowls of the party. Beulah did not appear the least bit sorry for her treatment of the child, but laughed and chatted either with a sabre or a pistol, at the Palace of Galchina, is corroborated by advices received from St. Petersburg.

The impression among those who have had an opportunity of becoming personally acquainted with the present Czar of Russia is that the trugic occurrence is due rather to ungovernable temper and almost insane fits of passionate anger to which he is notoriously subject, rather than to any mere fear of a personal attack. This impression is further strengthened by the foliowing facts, which perhaps are not generally known in the United States:

"Some time after the termination of the Franco-German war the Grand Duke Alexis, brother of the present Czar, and who is well known in New York, contracted a secret marriage with Madamoiselle de Beutern, niece of Baron de Reutern, who at that time was the Czar's Minister of Finance. When the matter became known the Grand Duke withdrew with his young wife to Nice, and other resorts on the French and Italian coast of the Mediterranean. Not only the late Czar, but especially the present Emperor was furious with the Grand Duke, and Alexander II., in his double capacity of supreme head of the orthodox Greek Church and autocrat of all the Russias, decreed the secret marriage to be null and void. Alexis, however, took no heed of these measures, but continued to reside with Baron de Reutern's niece, who bore him three lovely children. At length the Grand Duke's attachment for the poor gkri appeared to grow colder, and he commenced to neglect her. It was during one of his frequent absences that Count Peter Schouvaloff, who for several years held the post of Chief of the Police of the Empire, visited the young mother and had a prolonged interview with her on behalf of the Russian Imperial family. What passed between them is naturally only known to the parties immediately interested, but the outcome was that neither Mile. de Reutern nor her children ever saw the Grand Duke again.

De Reutern, the gentleman, mentioned as having been killed, was the brother of the young lad

the present Czar, their uncle, the former Minister of Finance, has failen into deep disgrace, owing to the fact that his record as head of the National Treasury was not as unblemished as might have been desired. It is believed here that young de Reutern was waiting to see the Czar, and that in consequence of the heat of the weather, he had unbuttoned his heavy chamberlain's uniform. The monarch suddenly entering the room seems to have found him in his state, and, probably attributing it to the fact that the young man was presuming on his quasi relationship to the Imperial family, censured him in the bitter manner which is customary to him. De Reutern, stung by the imperial insults, most likely answered in a disuspectful manner, and thus provoked one of those terrible fits of anger which are so dreaded by all who approach the Czar. This, I may add, is the version which has obtained most belief here, and certainly it appears a more plausible one than that which describes the gigantic and herculean Czar as a cowardly politroon.

Russian Consul-General in this city, is absent n Washington. The Vice-Consul said, however, that he was inclined to discredit the ruever, that he was inclined to discredit the rumor of the killing of de Reutern, and that the Czar himself did it, was absurd on the face of it. The Posr-Disparch correspondent subsequently saw Mr. Hartmann, a member of the Nihillst party, and said to have been the leader of the plot to blow up the Czar's railway train near Moscow in 1890. It may be remembered that after the failure of the attempt Hartmann escaped to Paris, where he was imprisoned at the pressing instance of the Russian government. So great authority was raised by the Radical party throughout France against his arrest or extradition that the authorities released him on the condition that he would leave the party throughout France against his arrest or extradition that the authorities released him on the condition that he would leave the French territory. After spending some time in London he came over to New York in 1882, and is one of the principal members of the Russian revolutionary party, which meets at No. 12 Suffolk street. Mr. Hartmann, alluding to the cable dispatches received from Europe about the Czar, remarked: "This is the beginning of the end. There has been much of late in the papers regarding the almost entire disappearance of Nibilism from Russia. Deep waters run silently, and we do our best work unseen. The day before Alexander H. was blown to pleces the Moscow Gazette, of which Mr. Kakkoff is the editor, announced that Nihiism was extinct in Russia. Such will be the case this time. Once again the 'red terror' will grapple with the 'white terror,' and who will win? The people, surely."

In the midst of the storm a stoker, who had narrowly escaped being harled into the fire by the pitching of the vessel, deserted his post and rushed upon deck with the avowed intention of jumping overboad rather than to risk again the danger of his work. He was forced back to the furnace room, but his fright soon developed into insanity, and he was found crouching between two furnaces in abject terror, awaiting another opportunity to commit sulcide. He was placed in irons.

At the same time a panio was created in the steerage by the alarm of "fire" and several hundred men and women rushed to the hatches endeavoring to get to the boats. Dense volumes of what seemed to be smoke through the ship caused the alarm, and the officers in charge had a desperate fight for some time to control the frightened steerage passengers. Investigation showed that the "smoke" was merely steam caused by some water having washed over hot steam pipes. But again a fright had developed into a case of insanity, and one of the steerage passengers, an Englishman, who had deserted his family and his position on an English police force, attacked the steward with a razor and threatened to kill any one who tried to prevent his jumping overboard. He was placed under watch after being disarmed and became quieter after the storm had subsided. A cook was severely injured during the storm by being thrown across the kitchen with a knife in his hand, cutting his head.

than a year ago, and its incorporation last June. The report shows that forty-nine or fifty children have been cared for, ranging in age from babes of few weeks to boys and girls of 13 years, and nearly all these children are adopted or to be adopted as heirs. It has been shown that the work of placing the children in permanent family homes has been done, where all expenses were paid, at an average cost of less than $40 per child, half the usual cost of keeping a child for a year in an ordinary institution. The report further stated that when Mr. Higgs came to this city, less than a year ago, and began the work of child-saving, there was not a Protestant institution that would receive a child ninder 2 years of age, but at his suggestion the lady officers and directors of the Baptist Orphans' Home concluded to open a place on Morgan street which was to be known as the "Bables' Home." At that place he had his headquarters for some time, and there he boarded quite a number of his foundlings from the ranks of which he placed in homes twenty-odd children taken in by himself and the manager of the Home.

A NEBVOUS MAN,

Some indignant citizen, who evidently has

following flery, untamed epistic: To the Chief of Police of the City of St. Louis: For the Case of Potice of the Cay of St. Louis:

SIR—Is there no regulation toward the suppressing of the intolerable nuisance of negroes whistling on the streets at night. I reside on Morgan street, between Fourteenth and Sixteenth streets, and every night about 10:30 this miserable noise begins. It is a peculiar note—loud and shrill—and is repeated at close intervals till after midnight; and is the source of the most aggravating anneyance to every resident loud and shrill—and is repeated at close intervals till after midnight; and is the source of the most aggravating annoyance to every resident in the district named. I venture to say that if you were so fortunate as to occupy premises here, you would soon have the nuisance abated. Of course individuals cannot take the law into their own hands, though some would like to. The "peculiar note" referred to is a signal of a gang. Your patrolmen know it well. The effect on nervous and invalid people is indescribable and you would take measures to suppress the infernal nuisance. Very respectfully, P. S.—For over eleven months now, I and others have been disturbed in this way. If there is anything more disturbing in the supposed stillness of the night than a nigger's whistle some of us would like to know what it is.

St. Louis, October 22, 1886. CONFLAGRATION AT CARTHAGE A Large Business Block Destroyed by Fire Heavy Losses.

By Telegraph to the POST-DISPATCH. this morning a fire was discovered in a restaurant on the south side of the public square. established reputation, and it wouldn't have been fair to secure him a bit more than if I had secured Ferguson. Welch or some other great pitcher. But here was my case exactly: I was all broken up by the sickness of McCormick and by the lameness of Flynn's arm. We had no pitchers, and all I wanted to do was to put in an amateur, a young untried fellow who had played with the club. Mr. Von der Ahe told me he was willing enough to do it, only that his players raised such a kick. They had no reason for kicking, but they are bail players and but they are bail players and the summer of the fact that I was going to put in such a raw pitcher was a confession of weakness. Wasn't it? Anybody on When have seen that ladwin's engagement's known it will at once relieve us of any snaplcion of trying to work any snap game on our opponents. Some two weeks ago, young Baldwin dropped into my store in Chicago and was introduced to me as the pitcher who had won the championship in the Northwestern League. I liked his looks and I asked him how he would like to play in Chicago and was introduced to me as the pitcher who had won the championship in the Northwestern League. I liked his looks and I asked him how he would him to practice with a club a little so that Anson could see we at he was capable of doing, and so I told him if he would stay in the city I would pay his board. So he stald, and Anson, being pleased with him, advised that he be secured. I then told Baldwin if he would come around to my place of business on the 20th. the day I could sign contracts, I would engage him. That was how he came to be signed Wednesday last. We had no idea that McCormick when he had in the stall and we were liable to get in a hole, and, "said firm if we would that was agood thing, that he would come in handy if we got in a hole, and," said firm firm and them firm we have to we can put him in. I said that was agood thing, that he would come in handy if we got in a hole, and, "said was only necessity that compelied us to bring him along."

"In regard to new rules, do you think there ought to be some rule axainst this intentional fouling?"
"No: I can hardly say I do. I believe the thing will remedy tiself. Latham did a great deal of it, but every time I saw him he struck out. Doing away with the distinction of high and low balls I don't think ought to be done either. In my opinion it's all right as it is."

John Clarkson, the famous pitcher of the Chicagos, was asked about the fouling that is so extensively done by Latham and one or two others. He said: "I am not sure about its caring itself. I notice that it setting more common every day. It originated it is the state of the said of O'Neill is a good batter, but in two games he never made a hit off me."

Fred Pfeffer, the second baseman of the Chicagos, who is considered to be Dunlap's nearest rival as "king of the second bag," was asked his opinion of the Browns' pitchers. He said: "Hudson is the most puzzing, but he hasn't good control of the bail. If he only had that he would be the best in the nlue; but as it is now. I think that Foutz is their best man. But Hudson. I predict, will be a great pitcher some day. The Browns are a good fielding club, something like the Fillilies, better there than at the bat, where I they gave weak. Interest in Y. M. C. A. circles just now centers in the approaching State Convention, which opens Thursday evening next at Independence and closes Sunday evening. From the fact that nearly 125 names of delegates have already been sent in it is expected that the convention will be much larger than ever before. Among those who will attend from this city are: Rev. M. Rhodes, D.D., Walter G. Douglass, T. S. McPheeters, N. P. Parker, C. M. Williams, C. P. Finley, Geo. T. Coxhead, Selden P. Spencer, and others. There are also to be delegates from the Railroad and German branches, including Secretaries Buchanan and Kessler.

A REMARKABLE TOUR. THE RECEPTION WHICH HAS BEEN GIVEN

-The Mather Engagement at

ns in a change of plays every night and the terpretations of Shakspearean roles. They have been full of the charm of his masterly skill and intelligence and altogether command-His work this week has shown the lowing influence of experience, and while they have not possessed the vigor of voice and physique of the younger Booth, yet they have en superb in technique, in captivating inded to Mr. Booth by the public demon strates what a high place he occupies in the es-timation of the public, and proves conclusively great actor has a firm hold on the affections of

This was rendered the more conclusive by the fact that with the opposition of Mr. Booth Miss Mather in "Romeo and Juliet" has drawn excellent houses. The production is better than any illustration of the play could ossibly be. It is the accurate representation the costumes, mode of life, houses and cenes of the play and the times, rich in material and in artistic treatment. Not a detail is neglected and the smallest article has re-ceived the same care and study as the most important scene. It is a triumph for the manager and the star.

The present tour of Mr. Booth has far exceeded in public interest and in financial returns or American, at the same price. It has been a triumphal march, and has reached high-water mark in every city where Mr. Booth has appeared. The receipts of the larger of the two weeks in Cnicago, as given out by the management of the Glorago Opera-house, were $20, 201.50. The receipts here will not reach this figure, and yetthose who know the capacities of the two houses can scarcely admit that the receipts of this week can fail under those of Chicago. The sale in advance here was larger by a thousand dollars or so than the Chicago sale, and the seating capacity of the Olympie is greater by over two hundred than the Chicago house. The prices were the same and the only difference between the two is that a few more seats were sold at $1.50 in Chicago than here, and there were reserved seats in the gallery at 75 cents. This last advantage is somewhat equalized by the ability to pack the gallery without the reserved seats.

There is just a suspicion that the Chicago receipts are somewhat exaggerated and that the receipts here represent about the biggest return of the season so far. Be this as it may the receipts here are the largest ever realized from a week's engagement at the same prices in this city. The total depends on this afternoon's and to-night's returns. The matinee this afternoon opened with the largest audience of the week. To-night promises to equal any other night. This will bring the receipts to the neighborhood of $17,000. This sum is several thousands above the reseipts of Mr. Booth's last engagement, above Mr. Irving's receipts at $2.50 a seat and above Mary Anderson's engagement last season at the same prices. It is an unprecedented business for this city.

The tour will include San Francisco, Portland, Ore.; Butte City, Mont.; and other cities where Mr. Booth has not been at all or has seidom been and where fancy prices will be freely paid. The profits of the season, therefore, cannot fail to be enormous, and judging from the season so far can scarcely be less than between $300,000 or $400,000, probably nearer the latter than the former sum, This is no small reward even for ripe genius.

Mr. Booth has shown more activity than usual. He has walked and driven around the city during his stay here and appears to be preparing for several years of work. In his speech at Chicago he bade his audience adieu for a year hinting that he would return again next season. Mr. Chase, who is directing the tour for Mr. Barrett, has reserved a date here for next year and states that Mr. Booth will certainly return.

Manager J. M. Hill is contemplating making another big effort in the way of play production. He has under consideration "Thisbe," a play of the elder Dumas. He thinks it very strong and wants to produce it, particularly because there is a fete scene in the first act which offers opportunity to introduce any form of spectacle that he may choose to arrange. He says he wants to exceed all previous efforts in the way of stage fetes. His plans are not yet fully developed, but the new pro-

For next week two new plays are promised, with well-known and talented artists in the principal roles. At the Grand Opera-house principal roles. At the Grand Opera-house Miss Kate Forsyth, the handsome and clever actress, will appear in "Marcelle," a play written for her by J. C. Roach and J. Amory Knox of the Texas Siftings. The play is said to be strong in plot and construction, and admirably suited for Miss Forsyth. The character which Miss Forsyth assumes calls for good dressing, and some superb toilettes by Worth are promised by the charming actress. It is the part of a wronged wife, who is persecuted by a villain. The company includes Messrs. Frank Losee, Henry Holland, Burr W. McIntosh, J. H. Fitzpatrick, Chas. W. Allison, Jos. Conyers, Jas. Wilson, Geo. W. Stewart, Henry Stern, Misses Ethel Greybrooke, Virginia Thorne, Bijou Fernandez, Flora Lytton, Mrs. E. L. Fernandez and Miss Williams. The first performance will be given to-morrow night.

gathered in the Olympic last night to witness Mr. Booth's performance of "Macbeth." It was as andience as fine in quality as in numbers, every seat and box in the house being filled and the marked attention and generous applause accorded the tragedian showed the effect which his artistic and vigorous impersonation of the ambitious Thane gained. Mr. Booth invested the character of Macbeth with barbaric strength mingled with a psychological study of the motives which were his promptings to crime and to remorseful despair.

No lack of vigor was visible in Mr. Booth last night, but on the other hand he infused wonderful energy into his acting, and the climax of the combat in the last act was sustained by, a savege assault. Mr. Booth's company was not always equal to the demands of the play. Mr. Barron's Macduff was vigorous but not always in the best form. Mr. Hanford made an excellent Malcolm. Mrs. Augusta Foster falled to reach the demands of the part of Lady Macbeth. Mr. Booth rather singularly omitted the appearance of the ghost in the banquet scene, trusting to imagination to supply the appartition.

Mr. Thos. E. Garrett's Benefit.

Pope's Theater was packed last night and people had to be turned away, but this evening promises to be the event of the week on account of the benefit to Mr. Thomas E. Garrett, tendered by Mr. Hill. "The Honey-moon" will be presented in its entirety and Miss Mather makes a charming Juliana and her support is strong. The friends of Mr. Gar-rett are many and the house will doubless be filled.

A FRIENDLY TIP. low a Gallery God Saved Mary Anderson's

Mr. Augustus Pitou, the actor-manager, in drops hints to the actors, told a story con-cerning Mary Anderson's debut in London which has never reached publicity. "I was in London the night of her opening," said he, London the night of her opening," said he, "and Mr. Abbey sent me a couple of seats in the balcony. I went to see the performance with my wife. Miss Anderson had evidently been told to suppress herself as much as possible, and to maintain a subdued tone, as the style most likely to catch the Britishers. This must have been impressed on her mind, for she spoke in a low tone, and never gestured above her shoulders during the entire first act. She did not give a single one of her sweeping gestures, and her fine voice was kept so low as to be scarcely intelligible. The first act fell flat. The audience was veylently disappointed and scarcely a hand was raised. I waited for the scene in which she subdues Ingomar, believing that if she did not catch them then she never would. It opened in the same subdued way. Jack Barnes was playing Ingomar as a society part. Miss Anderson got to the place where she prays for protection without making the least bit of impression. The galiery was filled with a regular London crowd. Coats were taken off and the front line of men and boys were leaning on their cloows trying to catch the words. The house was very quiet when a big, round-faced fellow leaned over the railing and shouted: 'Speak a little louder, Mary.' There was a laugh all over the house and Miss Anderson, who has a strong sense of the ridiculous, laughed. It seemed to bring her to her senses. She realized that she was not making the impression she should and she changed her whole manner. She played the part as she always did, swung her arms and gave her declamatory powers a chance. It saved the performance. The star had the audience with her in jiffy.''

Bob Mantell tells something of the same kind of story on himself, only the incident broke him up. He played for some time once in Glasgow and made a great many friends who got to know him well. He left the place for awhile and then came back as leading man for a provincial star. One night he was playing 'Lady of Lyons' and at the place where Claude throws his cloak over

Of the other American singers in Europe come tidings to Paris from all quarters. Mrs. Clara Poole-King, the American contraito, is engaged to sing as Siebel in "Faust" at Genoa. Miss Teresa Adams is shortly to appear in Italian opera at Lemberg, in Austria, a city where Miss Elia Russell achieved some of the most brilliant of her earlier triumphs. Miss Rose Stewart of Boston is to appear in Bizet's opera of "The Pearl Diver" at Leghorn in October, and will sing in the same work later in the season at Verona. Mile. Donati (Miss Seebas of New York) is continuing in Italy her former successes in the role of "Mignon." Mrs. Rammelsberg of Cincinnati (Mme. Kate Rolla) has taken up her abode at Palermo, and will sing occasionally in opera during the winter in the leading cities of Sicily. Mime. Nordica (Mrs. Lillan Norton Gower) is engaged by Col. Mapleson as one of his prime donne for his autumnal tour through the English provinces. And brave Jennie Dickerson, the American contraito, the most spirited and energetic specimen of American womanhood on the European boards, is winning laureis in England as the leading contraito of the Carl Rosa Company. She has lately made a great success as Lazarillo in "Maritana." Miss Dickerson, who is a native of Des Molnes, Io., is a tail, fine-looking xirl, with expressive tragic features and deep, dark eyes, her physique according perfectly with the rich, full tones of her beautiful voice. She will make a noble Ortrud, she having been engaged with a special view to the forthcoming revival of "Lohengrin" by the Carl Rosa toupe. Her experience goes to show how much pluck and intelligence have to do with the shaping of a career. She came to London without an engagement and without even the prospect of one. The agent of M. Carl Rosa heard her sing and said that possibly in another year there might be a vacancy found for her in the company. Just at that Juncture the leading mezzo soprano chanced to fall ill. Miss Dickerson was offered her role, took it at once, sang it admirably, and was forthwith tendered a three years' engagement. The doctor said we had no rither need of him, and ceased his visits. In three rour weeks a complete cure was wrought, leaving ne little fellow's person as white and healthy as nough he had never been attacked. In my opinion, our valuable remedies saved his life, and to-day he a strong, healthy child, perfectly well, no repetion of the disease having ever occurred. You are elecome to make any use of this you may demact.

PHILADELPHIA, October 22.—The death of fike McCool caused hardly a ripple of surit would have been an event of nt from the ring and lived so humble vague sort of way as a big, strong slugger who had once been a sort of somebody in the fistic ranks. I knew him well, and saw him fight Bill Blake, the Western "Dublin Tricks," Joe Coburn, Aaron Jones and Tom Allen. He was a slugger, pure and simple, and his knowledge of the manly art was but rudimentary. He was as game as a pebble, though he had a way of of Allen broke into the ring and robbed him of the fight. The next time Mike was beaten so badly that Tom Kelly gave in for him at the end of twenty minutes. He had no breiness with men of Allen's grade. He had a fondness for the "river" that nothing could conquer, and he liked his boating associates above all others. In the zenith of his fistic career, the champion of America, when in Louis-ville, he invariably stopped in a low doggery on the levee in preference to going to a first-class hotel. His reason was that the proprietor of the place had been his friend in his humbler days and he added, "I'll not go back on him now." He was unfortunate in his marriage. His wife was a girl of some education and intelligence and was the daughter of a rich contractor of your city. I will not attempt to write of his St. Louis life for you all know much more of it than I do. The last time I saw Mike was the night below the subject of the strength of the fight but he declined, saying: "Damn the fighters, they are no good. If I had my pay I'd ram every one of them in the calabose. Why don't they do as I do, go to work." Mike was then the boss of a cotton press gang and he looked gray and grizzied far beyond his years.

There is one thing that must be said for Frank Hearld and that is that he is undaunted by defeat. His latest match is with Jake Killian, whom he is to meet at Baltimore on the lat of Novembor. Jake is a good man and undefeated one. He has met Cleary, well, Burke and all the cracks except the wind but none of them have succeeded with out. "Carbolic Smoke Ball" appeals to your common sense, and investigators must acknowledge it the most sensible remedy they have seen from its great simplicity, speedy action and unfailing results. Though taken by inhalation, it is like no inhaler ever used, which generally enters the air passages as a gas, being expelled by the next breath. Our medicine arises as a smoke, lighter than the air you breathe, penetrating and thoroughly treating every air passage of the head, throat, bronchial tubes and lungs, cutting loose and eating up the poison of the disease. One Ball, lasting from a few months upwards, generally sufficient for a cure. Price, $2.00.
